

Leading recruitment websites for the food and drink industry

By SARANTIS PISPILIS

Free movement has contributed to economic growth by meeting local labour demand and by matching skills shortages. There has been little or no negative impact on local wage rates or unemployment levels.

Certainly labour flows have declined due to the recession and some people have gone back home. This - at least - shows that borderless labour mobility provides the European economy with some much needed flexibility.

The EU continues to see worker mobility as a key part of the Community's growth and jobs strategy.

The Food and Drink industry is one of the fastest-developing sectors in both Europe and America.

The Food and Drink industry collects the daily attention of thousands of candidates looking for a job. Taking into consideration the global economic crisis, we present some websites in Europe and America that might facilitate the job search.

Our narrow research is being done only to some specific job websites dedicated to the field of Food Science, Technology & Nutrition.
